'Swamp' Prepares to Reopen

February 14, 1966

By Annette Spiess

"The Swamp" is here. And what is "The Swamp"? It is the new name of the North St. Paul Teen Center.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the center, it was decided that a definite name was needed, something unique and different. Thus, the advent of "The Swamp." It was also pointed out that the students of Hill and Archbishop Murray High Schools regard the center as being exclusively for North High students. This concept is wrong, and the directors of the center would like to point out that "The Swamp" is maintained for any teenager, 15 to 18 years of age, in the District 622 area.

Members of "The Swamp" probably noticed the alterations too the interior of the center; however, these changes are only a beginning to what the director's hope eventually will be a true "swampy" atmosphere. Due to North High's participation in the hockey championship playoffs, and their hot pursuit of the suburban basketball crown, the center will be closed until Saturday, February 19th. A dance will be held then with music by the Bad Omens, back by popular demand.
